

DC APPLICANT DISCLAIMER

Life University Doctor of Chiropractic Program is fully accredited by the Council on Chiropractic Education. This educational requirement certifies that the program's curriculum meets the standards required by the United States and its respective territories. In addition, some states require an applicant to have a bachelor's degree prior to entering a Doctor of Chiropractic program and/ or have a bachelor's degree prior to the completion of the program. This requirement is necessary to gain eligibility for licensure upon completion of the program.

I understand and acknowledge that admissions to the Doctor of Chiropractic Program at Life University and subsequent completion of the requirements necessary for conferring of the degree, does not guarantee eligibility for licensure in all US states and territories. As a Doctor of Chiropractic applicant and student, I accept personal responsibility for ensuring that I have met any additional licensure requirement in the state(s) of choice that may be required prior to application and prior to completion of the program. Please refer to the Federation of Chiropractic Licensing Board website (FCLB.org) or the state's respective licensing board for more information.
