

LIFE UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR DR. MICKEY PARSONS NAMED TO HR TECH OUTLOOK'S TOP 10 LIST

Marietta, Georgia, July 19, 2019 – As founder of The Workplace Coach, Life University's (LIFE) Dr. Mickey Parsons, Assistant Professor of Psychology, was recently honored with a placement on HR Tech Outlook magazine's Top 10 Leadership Development Training/Coaching Companies of 2019 list – an annual listing of 10 companies that are at the forefront of providing leadership development training and transforming businesses.

Parsons' The Workplace Coach is a leadership development training and service provider that coaches individuals and teams on optimizing performance and better leadership.

As an executive coach, Parsons provides developmental exercises that equip leaders and their organizations for success. In 2011, he became an assistant professor of coaching psychology at Life University and co-created their Master of Science degree program in Positive Psychology (Coaching Track), expanding his passion for coaching to include supporting others in obtaining high-quality coach education and mentoring.

"My vision for coaching is that it no longer be an emerging, buyer beware field, but a fully legitimate profession dominated by highly experienced, competent and ethical credentialed coaches. I have a passion for developing, inspiring and helping people, and I find it especially rewarding to do that in a business context," states Parsons.

Through The Workplace Coach, he and his team deliver high-impact executive, leadership and career coaching services, along with business management and organizational development consulting, to facilitate individual and organizational effectiveness.
